Got up this morning to watch the sunrise in Bluff.

Even the rain was pink.

A strange rainbow pulsed on and off.

And as magically as it had appeared it all disappeared, so we ate apple coffee cake.

Drove up US-191 past the La Sal mountains.

Saw a golden eagle.

Saw the beehive rock that Utah copied for its beehive route signs.

Avoided the Ute speed trap at White Mesa.

Got to Moab and bought stuff.

PS – Murray acted out. He loosened a tire tool in a compartment under our luggage and rattled it all the way to Moab. He needs to kill a starling or something.
