Headed south down CO 159 this morning. We were at 7800 ft and the clouds were at 7900.

Overcast and gray the rest of the way: East to Red River, a cute little mountain town where we always find good stuff in the shops; onward through Eagle Nest, Cimarron, then lunch in Raton (split a buffalo Burger at Pappas' Sweet Shop). Also bought a hunka fudge which will be gone as soon as Sheila eats the last couple of bites. The straight and narrow (and flat) out of Raton to Liberal, Kansas. Home tomorrow. Now that we are both retired, coming home on a Thursday is soooooo irrelevant! 😊

The trip sure didn't come out the way we expected. Instead of Phantom Ranch, the key highlight may have been Yellow Bikini Babe. Honestly, we can try Phantom Ranch again but YBB was a once in a lifetime opportunity. Ah, kismet.

Thanks for coming along.
