Here we go again. Already? You just went! Big smile. So we did.

As usual when we “go” anywhere, we “go” through Kansas first. If you think it’s tough on you to read these emails when they are full of grain silos and stories about what’s blowing across the road, you should be the ones who drive it. Which leads us to: we stopped for ice first thing in the morning and on the counter, right next to Ahmed, was a stack of “The Slammer”. Actual pictures of people recently arrested in your local zip codes! No way! Better than grain silos!

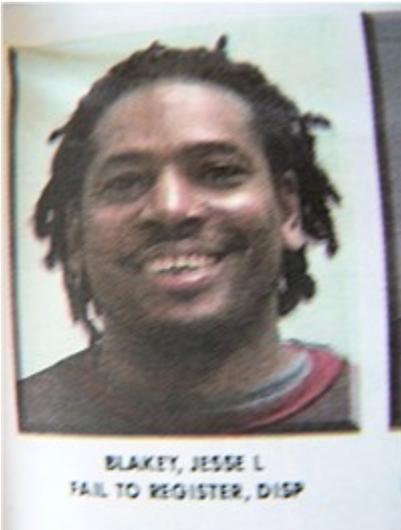

Some of our neighbors:

Check this guy. He thinks it's for the yearbook.

We took turns driving and reading.
Vacation begins again tomorrow.
